STREET STORIES

Saturday and Sunday was a strenuous day with the police department and this morning acting Mayor DeWitt had his hands full in municipal court passing judgment on the merits and demerits of the various cases brought before him.

James Carroll of Brock was in the city today on business. Mr. Carroll states that the cotton crop in that locality has been nearly all harvested but there was yet quite a lot of it yet to be picked. With continued good weather he predicts that much more will be gathered in the Brock neighborhood than at first predicted.

"Might as well get ready for the white way, as we are going to vote for it," is the general opinion of every property owner of the city when asked for an opinion on the matter. Evidently there will be little or no opposition to granting a new franchise to the Ardmore Light & Power company at the election to be held soon.

At the Cooking School.

The Ardmoreite's free cooking school opened today in the dining room of the Randal hotel under most favorable circumstances. Mrs. Bertha Wilcock, who is conducting the school, had the room filled with interested ladies who were all eager to learn the secrets of the culinary art. This being the opening date, things could not be expected to run as smoothly as from now on, but there is a deep interest manifested and the housewives of the city are taking advantage of this opportunity to learn more of the science that goes further toward maintaining a happy home than any other that might be mentioned.

Mrs. Wilcock explains every detail, tells how to select proper foods, and above all to properly prepare them for the table. Her instructions will be worth a great deal to many young matrons of the city who are now beginning the establishment of a home, inasmuch as it will teach them the true secret of the surest way to a man's heart.

In her lectures upon cooking and preparing various dishes, Mrs. Wilcock gives a practical demonstration inasmuch as the dish as actually prepared by her in the presence of the ladies present and everything fully explained from the raw material to the finished product.

"There would not be as many bachelors and bachelor maids in this country," remarked one lady yesterday, "if they could but realize that a whole lot of this talk about the high cost of living is a myth, when a five-course dinner for four people can be prepared for a total cost of forty cents it rather appears on the surface that a thorough knowledge of purchasing and proper course of cooking and serving pays."

The school will continue until Friday afternoon and every lady in Ardmore is especially urged to attend. There is absolutely no charge for these lectures. Everything is furnished by The Ardmoreite Publishing company, and we invite and urge everyone to attend.

Mob Controls Town.

Augusta, Kan., Oct. 9.—After being for thirty hours in control of an incensed group of oil men, this town yesterday was quite and again under the jurisdiction of the civil authorities after Mayor Weidline addressed a gathering of citizens informing them that he had accepted the resignation of Chief of Police J. R. Crowe and appointed John Foster, well-known citizen, to the place. Plans in preparation to ask Governor Capper to call out the national guard were abandoned tonight.

A feud between the police force and residents of Augusta which, became a city only in recent months through an oil "boom" caused the trouble here which culminated Friday night in the wrecking of the jail and the assaulting of Chief Crowe and his deputies. The citizens claimed the police were tramping up cases to collect court fees.

FIVE SHIPS SUNK BY SUBMARINE

GERMAN SUBMARINE SINKS
THREE BRITISH, ONE DUTCH AND ONE NORWEGIAN SHIP.

OFF AMERICAN COAST

Crew of Only One of the Vessels Reported Missing. Several Other Submarines Reported off the Coast Near Boston.

Boston, Oct. 8.—Five steamers, three British, one Dutch, and one Norwegian, have been torpedoed off the American coast, near here, by one or more German submarines, one of which is said to be the U-53, which visited Newport Saturday, according to reports received from the destroyed vessels tonight. The crew of one ship is missing, all others and the passengers have been accounted for. All the ships except one British, were sunk, and it is sinking.

The Lost Ships.

The lost ships include the British steamers Stephano, West Point and Kingston, crew missing, and the Dutch steamer Bloomersdijk, and Norwegian steamer, Christian Knudsen.

Number of Americans Unknown.

A number of Americans on board the Stephano were rescued by the destroyer Balch and were transferred tonight to the destroyer Jenkins. The number of Americans aboard was not stated in the radio message received here. American destroyers also picked up the crews of the other ships with the exception of the Kingston.

The Stephano was sunk early Sunday morning and the others later in the day.

AN UNUSUAL COMPLIMENT.

Mrs. L. N. Murdock Has Written More Insurance Than Any Other Lady. Mrs. L. N. Murdock is back in Oklahoma from St. Louis, where she attended the 27th annual convention of the National Life Underwriters' association. More than 3,000 delegates were in the convention. St. Louis extended every courtesy that a hospitable people could think of and every moment of the convention was an enjoyable one. Secretary of War Baker was among the notables who addressed the convention. Among those present was Mr. Howland, president of the National Life Insurance company. In his address he paid Mrs. Murdock the unusual compliment of saying that to see her was worth a trip from Montpellier to St. Louis, that Mrs. Murdock of Ardmore had written more life insurance than any other lady agent ever employed by the National Life in the 66 years of its existence. Mrs. Murdock has demonstrated that women can succeed in the life insurance business and her career is one for the entire city to be proud of.

The failure of Mr. Hughes' voice is perhaps due to the straining efforts to speak the hyphenate language.
